Thieves stole $3.49 from a post-office lock box and $5 and merchandise from the C. B. Jones store in Bertrand Tuesday night. Prying open a door of the store, they blew Jones' safe, which was unlocked, took twenty bottles of soda, and then went into the post-office, which is in an adjoining room, and opened a small box containing cash.

Officers think the crime was committed by the same persons who have recently cracked safes at Clarkson, Holcomb, and Neelyville.

H. E. Fox Accused of Giving Mill Company a Fraudulent Check

A preliminary hearing for Herbert E. Fox on a charge of writing a worthless check for $89.65 for payment for flour and meal bought from the Scott County Milling Company on April 3, was continued until Monday when Fox appeared in Judge Joseph W. Myers' court Thursday.

James McDowell of Charleston, Fox' attorney, was considering taking a change of venue to Justice C. D. M. Gupton's court in Morley. Fox is free on a $200 bond signed by himself and his father, Harrison Fox, of Morehouse.

Murray Phillips made a complaint against Fox Monday, charging him with buying ten sacks of meal and many bags of the various kinds of flour the Scott County sells and giving as payment an $89.65 check written on the First Security State Bank of Charleston, in which he had insufficient funds. It is possible the suit will be dismissed if the Scott company is paid for its merchandise.

Cases against George Johns, who is accused of writing three worthless checks amounting to $5.65, were continued until August 6 when Johns appeared in Judge William S. Smith's court Thursday.

Johns is charged with cashing a $1.25 check at the A. & P. store, one for $2.50 at the City Cak Company, and one at the O. K. Auto Supply for $1.90. He denies knowledge of them, saying someone else wrote them and signed his name.

Dr. Reuber is temporarily using his reception room for consultations. When his office is remodeled, patients will leave by a private exit.

WARRANT CHARGES MAN WITH RECKLESS DRIVING

A warrant charging Roscoe Weltecke with reckless driving was issued in Judge Joseph W. Myers' court late Tuesday. No return had been made by Thursday noon.

Trooper Melvin Dace said he stopped Weltecke near the north Y Friday night and told him to appear in Judge Myers' court on a charge of driving while intoxicated. The warrant was issued after he had failed to report.

Friends of James Withrow of Campbell, whose bond for appearance in Judge Myers' court on a drunken driving charge was deposited Monday, have been unable to make a new bond for his release. Withrow has been in the Benton jail since arrest Monday after Herbert Finney, a surety on the old bond, asked that a default be ordered.

Father Peters' Annual Parish Picnic

By Madelyn Roussan
Democracy in Southeast Missouri enjoyed another heart-warming rally yesterday when from far and near folks came about 3,000 strong to gather at the Glennonville where, in the name of Father Peters' annual parish picnic, everybody had a good time and the Democratic campaign got another big boost toward election success.

Candidates and voters, alike, joined hands as it were to make this a grand and glorious occasion for furthering the interests of Democracy as well as making it a memorable picnic from a financial standpoint in the annals of the Glennonville parish. It could well qualify for being the biggest one-man picnic even given in the State.

The multitude feasted on the deliciousness of crisp-brown fried chicken, cakes stacked three decks high, and an array of other good victuals as only the "wimmen folks" of a church can put out. Upwards of a thousand people were fed in this manner and all filled out of the dining room as happy and contented as honey bees flying out of a clover field.

Interest was divided as to amusements pursued, ranging all the way from listening to Tommy Jones play the fiddle up to watching Ol' Man Ebelhor pitch balls at wooden dolls to win a pocketful of cigars. But when it came to political issues, all were of one accord. The cause of Democracy must not suffer loss at the election polls next November!

The bands present, two of them, played lots of lively airs, adding zest to the occasion. Those with red caps were from Kennett, in blue from Poplar Bluff, musical donations toward a more perfect picnic. And the neighborly spirit of Democracy was manifested by the sign on the band stand which read, "Poplar Bluff High School Band, compliments from the Butler County Central Committee to the Dunklin County Central Committee." That's really helping each other along!

Something else as food for thought on that sign, caught and held the attention of the assemblage. Emblazoned on the banner was the statement, four years in advance, "Welcome, Senator Clark. Democracy's Presidential candidate in 1940!" And nobody doubted the assertion.

A number of prominent campaigners, among them Bennett Champ Clark himself, were billed to speak in the afternoon, but only two of the major scheduled ones, Orville Zimmerman, Congressman incumbent, and William Hirth, with governor ambitions, arrived to keep their engagement. They, together with aspirants seeking primary favors in August for lesser offices, entertained the throng in behalf of themselves and Democracy. Irl Jones, as chairman of the Dunklin County Democratic Committee, saw to it that the situation did not lack for a master of ceremonies.

Zimmerman, able representative from Missouri's 10th Congressional District, rose to the defense of Roosevelt and Democracy by predicting, "As sure as the sun rises in the east and sets in the west, we're going to re-elect to direct our nation's destiny the friend of the common man and laborer, that great humanitarian, Franklin Delano Roosevelt!"

In calling up reasons for this, Congressman Zimmerman went on to state our President, "He is the tried and true friend of the common people upon whose votes his election will depend. His foes have already declared war on him, so that it is up to his admirers and the common people of this nation to see him through."

Driving home this fact, speaker Zimmerman went on to expose the power behind the Republican throne, proving that it is Big Business and Wall Street henchmen are directing campaign venom against Roosevelt, making him the "goal", the real issue, of the anti-Democratic attack. Our Presidential has his enemies and the Republican ranks are full of them.

That Big Business is opposed to him may be verified by a look at the list of contributors to the pre-campaign fund of the Grand Old Party, a list that reveals such juicy plums as these for the diet of the Republican elephant: "Du Pont, No. 1, $5,000; Du Pont, No. 2, $5,000; Du Pont, No. 3, $5,000; Du Pont, No. 4, $5,000; Rockefeller, Sr., $5,000; Rockefeller, Jr., $5,000." And so on until the pre-campaign fund expanded to include $450,000, that amount representing the Wall Street donations of Big Business given in the hope of throttling the man now in the White House who is so bent on the welfare of common folks at the expense of the moneyed class.

Contributing to the Republican fight is the way in which Big Business hopes to squelch this humanitarian, "Stop Roosevelt!" howls Wall Street. "What for?" asks Zimmerman. "Stop him from carrying out a farm program that has lifted agriculture out of the mire of despondency, restoring depreciated corn values from a 32 cent level up to the dollar-a-bushel range and lifting cotton from a 5 cent-a-pound market up to a promising 13 cent peak this fall?"

Is that anything, queried the Congressman, to stop a man for? And yet the Du Ponts, Morgans, Rockefellers, and other financial gamins frequently Wall Street keep harping on the old Republican refrain, "Stop Roosevelt!" The reason for their hue and cry is quite obvious. Declared Zimmerman, "They want to stop this humanitarian in order that they (through the channels of the Republican party) can resume exploitation of the people!"

During his speech, the Congressman localized his subject by making reference to his own efforts in behalf of Southeast Missouri before the House of Representatives at Washington. He not only told his colleagues there that he was representing the best district in the United States, but rolled up his sleeves to fight for the interests of that district, particularly for the flood control it needed so badly.

He was a militant factor in gaining for Southeast Missouri overflow land the benefit of the $16,000,000 Overton Bill which will protect this section from the ravages of St. Francois and other river floods. Zimmerman says he feels he has kept his covenant with the people when two years he promised, if elected, he would give of his best in fighting for flood control measures.

Jim Fulbright, candidate for judge on the Springfield Court of Appeals, next mounted the platform. In Congress he was Zimmerman's predecessor from this district, serving under the Hoover regime to which fact he made reference by saying, "I wish I had served under such a man as Roosevelt—one mindful of the woes of humanity—rather than under one who was so concerned with protecting the moneyed interests!"

Judge C. H. Roberts, long-time official on Dunklin County's presiding bench, assailed the off-asserted charge brought against Lloyd C. Stark, candidate for Missouri's governorship, by declaring, "Stark is not Pendergast-controlled. He had the nomination already in the bag and sewed up

Man's Arm Crushed In Auto-Truck Collision

Ben Cruise of southeast of Dexter was seriously injured Monday night when the 1935 Dodge he was driving west on Highway 60 hit an eastbound truck from Morley.

The part of Cruise's left arm that was resting on his car door when the accident happened was crushed and a section of the main bone torn from the arm and thrown to the pavement.

Physicians said Cruise would have bled to death if J. R. Murphy of Morley, driver of the truck, had not tightly held the principal artery of Cruise's arm until he could be treated.

The accident happened at 8:45 at a place on the highway a mile east of Gray Ridge and 100 yards from a bridge that spans a lateral drainage ditch.

Murphy and Hal Boyce of Morley, the truck owner, were returning to Morley with a load of yearlings and were driving slowly because their headlights were a little dim and because many hay wagons and trucks were on the road. Murphy said he saw Cruise drive his car onto the wrong side of the pavement as he approached the truck. Murphy swerved his machine halfway off the highway, but not far enough for Cruise to miss him.

Ira Bilderbeck, a farmer living near the scene of the accident, drove Cruise to an Essex physician while Murphy held his bleeding arm. Cruise was later taken to a Poplar Bluff hospital, where the lower part of his arm, which was hanging only by skin, was amputated.

Troopers Gordon B. Inglis and Vincent Boisauhin, who investigated the accident, learned that Cruise had been to Morehouse to sell a bushel of peaches and was returning home when his car hit the truck. He was alone. Neither Murphy nor Boyce was hurt.

Drainage Improvement Program Is Under Way

Cape Girardeau, Mo., July 23.—With 275 miles of ditches under contract aggregating $11,392.30, the Little river drainage district's maintenance program in the seven counties in Southeast Missouri it serves is well under way for 1936. Definitely contemplating placing approximately 300 more miles of ditches under the clearing contracts, the district will, by late fall, have achieved its goal in maintenance work for this year.

Maintenance work of this character is a vital part of the drainage program, and the district, providing landowners co-operate with the district officials in making the program possible by the prompt payment of annual assessments, may be able to reduce the maintenance cost somewhat in the future, they said. Lowering of this cost, however, depends upon the frequency with which the district can cover the drainage system with its maintenance work of this character. All of the ditch mileage, given attention annually, is the objective. Annual coverage of the system reduces the amount of work necessary in the maintenance program, which should result in a corresponding decrease in costs.

The 275 miles of ditches now under clearing contracts is costing only $41.40 per mile. Last year the system was almost all covered in the program, 750 miles of ditches being cleared at a cost of about 48.00 or an average of $61.50 per mile. Last year's work is reflected somewhat in the decreased cost per mile of the 1936 program.

Drainage officials hope to cover the remaining 300 miles of ditches by November. This work consists in removing weeds, brush, vegetable growth, and obstructions, such as logs, fences, or other barriers which impede or stop the flow of water and permit the piling up of debris, robbing the channels of their drainage efficiency. Many landowners are responding splendidly in keeping ditches on their land free of barricades which cause the channels to fill.

What has been referred to as last year's program is exclusive of the approximately 75 miles of ditches dredged with machines, a necessarily expensive process in comparison to general maintenance by clearing the ditches. Such an expense can be made less frequent if the general maintenance program is permitted to cover the district annually, drainage district officials said.

Furthermore, it was pointed out, the maintenance program described above, does not include the great amount of work done by the three CCC camps in Southeast Missouri, which federal government has placed at the disposal of the several districts in Southeast Missouri in aiding the reclamation of fertile soil. The importance of the drainage program, drainage officials added, is well proven in the fact that the federal government before Pendergast ever gave his endorsement. The Judge also pointed out that because Stark is 100 per cent for old age pensions, it is the bounden duty of every voter to vote for a man who is pre-eminently interested in the welfare of old folks.

The good wishes of Dwight H. Brown were telegraphed to the picnic from New York City where Missouri's secretary of state is attending a national secretarial meeting from which he could not well be absent. He expressed regret at not being able to join in the exercises of the Glennonville picnic and Democratic jubilee.

ment went to the enormous expense of placing the three camps at Delta, Hayti, and New Madrid to augment what landowners by the payment of their annual drainage assessments enabled the Little river and other drainage district officials to undertake and accomplish. The far-reaching affect of the work programs of these camps has attracted considerable favorable attention in Washington, where CCC heads have pointed to them as examples of attained objectives in the drainage division of the CCC organization.

Work started on the two blocks of Ranney street from Center to Tanner Wednesday morning. A sewer line had to be taken up, the tile cleaned and relaid before active work on the curb and gutter could be started. The tile in this line is an 8-inch affair that leads from an 24-inch tile down Center to an 15-inch tile down Center to an eastern outlet. The 8-inch tile is entirely too small to carry off the volume of water that drains from Park, upper Ranney and Tanner from the Donnell property to the corner at the Stallcup property and should be replaced by a much larger tile line while the ditch is open. Then, again, the engineer should see that the line has sufficient fall to carry the water off swiftly in order that it will keep the sand and dirt from settling to the bottom and filling the line as heretofore. All the rainfall from blocks north on Park, Ranney and Sikes streets will pour down to Tanner and try to escape through the 8-inch tile and it just can't be done.

Rapid progress is being made on the new grade school building in Ward one and if the weather holds good the building will be completed on time. It will be a handsome structure and adds much to that neighborhood. Other notable improvements in that vicinity is the new residence and store combination of Billy Walker, and the room set aside for lunches for school children. Also, the remodeling and beautifying of the Lynn Wagener corner store and lunch place. These two lunch rooms will be very convenient for school children of both grade and high school.

SINKEY GIVES ANOTHER GOOD SHOW AND WINS

Charles Sinkey gave wrestling fans another good show Tuesday night. From his first argument about Schoolboy Knox' fingernails to the final rolling rocking chair split, he provided the crowd with laughter and concern.

Sinkey and Lee Meyers, the wrestler, who refereed for Mike Meroney, thought Schoolboy's nails were too long. Schoolboy didn't and held them up to show they weren't standing above his fingertips. He backed to his corner, looking a little stubborn, but after Sinkey said, "He'll cut them off before a rattle", and Meyers supported Sinkey, Schoolboy bit them shorter and the match began.

Sinkey was up to his old tricks, of course, choking, pulling fingers, gouging eyes, and running to the ropes when he got in tight places. And as always, he was offended if Knox gave him some of his own tactics. This was especially apparent when Knox got a head scissor and rubbed Sinkey's nose. "Why don't you watch that?" he yelled to Meyers.

Sinkey went a little too far one time. When he bit Knox' leg to free himself, Knox became angry and rushed Sinkey. Sinkey ran to the edge of the mat, and in trying to bring him back, Knox got him tangled in the ropes. Meyers had a hard time getting his legs free.

Sinkey's fun was interrupted again when he got a scissor and began slugging Knox. Meyers warned him twice, and then when he slugged again, separated the two men. Sinkey was disgusted. "Every time I get a good hold you break it," he said.

Knox had his difficulties, too, particularly because he couldn't keep his man in the ring. Once when he was well on the way to a fall with a series of flying tackles, Sinkey managed to reach the ropes. Knox only shook his head in despair.

The first fall ended after twenty-two minutes when Sinkey got a crabhold, but before he did Meyers had his moment. Sinkey refused to break a hold, and in trying to make him do it, Meyers became entangled with the wrestlers. Knox got free and went back to work on Sinkey. As Meyers got up he told Knox to get out of the way. Knox mumbled something about trying to help. Helping nothing, Meyers said you were about to break my leg.

Knox won the second fall in five minutes with monkey flips after the two had exchanged a little eye gouging, and Sinkey took the third fall in eighteen minutes with a rolling rocking chair split. In the last round, Sinkey distressed fans by rubbing Knox' face with a large bug that had obligingly settled on the mat.

YOUR INTEREST IN MISSOURI public utilities

ANY industry that grows in usefulness year after year naturally attracts wide public attention. So, as the service of Missouri's public utilities (your electric, gas and water companies) has grown, public interest in them has grown, as well as greater understanding, which has made even better service possible.

To perpetuate this understanding it is important to bear in mind this fact: that every family in Missouri, directly or indirectly, is closely associated with Missouri's public utilities.

Your public utilities serve solely the public . . . they are widely owned by the public . . . they help create business and employment for thousands of Missouri families . . . they shoulder a great portion of the public tax burden . . . and their rates are controlled by the public.

It is important, therefore, that as an individual, as the head of a Missouri family, as a citizen you know the accurate facts about public utility service in Missouri.

Read the accompanying brief statement, and see in detail how mutually the welfare of your public utilities is bound up with your own.

MONEY FOUND

On floor of the bargain basement of Buckner-Ragsdale Store. Must describe money—whether in billfold or not, denomination of bills and whether or not it contained silver.

Some brief FACTS about your public utilities -

SERVICE
One or more public utility services—electricity, gas, water—are used by practically every city and town home. . . by industries and businesses that provide employment to increasing numbers of Missouri citizens. Year by year, these services obtain a greater amount of service for an ever increasing number of uses—at steadily going up.

OWNERSHIP
Practically every citizen of Missouri has a stake in the ownership of his public utilities. The owners of these public utility businesses are those who supply the money to build it. This money is supplied by millions of families who have put aside something for a rainy day by investing in public utility companies . . . by insurance companies whose reserves are invested in the property of 63 million people who have taken from stock, if you own a public utility bond or stock, if you have a savings account . . . then it is your money that has built the public utilities, and you are one of the owners.

TAXES
Your utility companies bear a heavy part of the public tax burden—often as high as 15 cents out of every dollar of their revenues is paid in taxes to federal, state and local governments. That serves to correspondingly reduce each individual citizen's tax burden. (But when utility services are operated by political bodies—federal or municipal—they pay little or no taxes, thus adding to the public's tax burden.)

EMPLOYMENT
The important industries to the Nation today are those that create employment. Hundreds of thousands of jobs have been created by the expansion of the public utility industry, calling for the work of builders, factory employees, and almost every other occupation. Everyone who earns his living—whether by farming, in an office, or in a factory—depends to some extent upon the work created by public utilities—and is in addition to the materials from factories, mines, farms and local merchants.

REGULATION
Every citizen is represented in the control of the public utility rates. Your utility rates are controlled by public officials, responsible to the citizens of Missouri.

Without doubt the greatest burden carried by civilized people today is taxes. It is not so much the trouble of paying the taxes as the supposed injustice and blight upon our unborn children. Taxation is the favorite subject of office seekers who are on the outside. The Democrats did it until they got in and now the Republicans are doing it. The city papers are exercised about the cost to taxpayers of submitting the proposed insurance code. We don't know whether it is worth the cost or not but at the same time there will be submitted a proposal to increase the salaries of legislators from $5 a day for 70 days to $1,500 a year or $3,000 for the term. This will cost a lot more than the insurance code and we believe it is worth it. However, there are a lot of people who do not and we are more certain that it will be defeated than the insurance code. Before folks became civilized they had no taxes to worry about and figured their unborn children would be able to take care of themselves. Isn't it too bad we have progressed beyond the fig leaf or G-string and have politics and taxation to contend with?—Shelbina Democrat.

We can imagine nothing more cruel than misleading old people into the notion that they would be getting full payment on pension claims except for Governor Park's refusal to call an extra session of the legislature for the purpose of providing more funds. The governor, it will be remembered, tried with all his might to get more money at the regular session. He was balked by the very interests that are now trying to swing Missouri into the Republican column, powerful interests which oppose everything that costs a penny. The Democratic party inaugurated the pension policy and will find ways to finance it if kept in power. Governor Park, it should be remembered, queried all members about an extra session of the legislature and found two-thirds of them against it, so why call an extra session.—Paris Appeal.

Two carloads of watermelons—the first of Dunklin county's crop, which, experts say, will be only from 15 to 20 per cent of normal—were shipped from Kennett last week. Lee Warren of south of Kennett loaded the first car Tuesday with Dixie Belles averaging twenty-five pounds and sent them to a Kansas City commission house. The next day, L. R. Rainey, also of south of Kennett, shipped to Hannibal a carload of the same variety.

POLITICAL PARAGRAPHS

FROM LAPLATA PRESS

Anti-administration papers would disfranchise CCC workers because of fear they might vote for the party that took them from relief and gave them the most consistent job of the whole endeavor to lift this country out of the mire it had slumped into during the "twelve long years" of Republican rule. One paper published in Boston has these headlines: "Leave of absence all the rage with the administration" Farley given leave of absence" But it did not say, without pay. CCC workers to have leave of absence to go home to vote." Probably it was because the yell would be to be taken, without pay?

Col. Henry Breckenridge, the Liberty League du Pont candidate in three or four primaries to head off Roosevelt, has returned his sheep clothing to the home loft. He is back in the Republican party after suffering from 5 to 1 to 15 to 1 defeat in each state the League put him in as Roosevelt's primary foe. He now says he will vote for Landon. Lord, but there is a mixed lot of these renegades from other tribes trying to save the Republican party. All outcasts, disgruntled and defeated in their ambitions, have found sanctuary within the party they so roundly cursed before they found that they could not fool the Democrats into accepting them.

The Kansas Neodesha Register says, "The kids of 50 years ago had no comes for their ice cream, no ice cream to put in 'em no ice cream sodas, no chocolate fudge, no divinity cream, no roller skates, no coaster wagons, no bicycles, no league ball, no store bat, no catcher mit. Instead they amused themselves with methods which required no cash outlay—and had just as good a time as the kids of today." Yet if these kids had been made without cash outlay, the kids of today would not have had the long list enumerated above. The good times had by the kids of fifty years ago consisted largely of trying to make better things. In other words they were changing the constitution to fit conditions as they went along.

It's funny, when you come to think about it, why the anti-administration papers forget to tell the coming sons and daughters, if any, about what will be left them besides, possibly a national debt that we had left to us; that they will have left as a heritage thousands of miles of concrete roads; a great forest just coming into use; that the CCC boys are setting out for them; a heritage of health and vigor, imparted by parents, whom this government through its social welfare plans built up from a rapidly deteriorating race to sound and healthy men and women. Besides all of this, the most valued of all—an American plan of government that will prevent them from becoming the serfs of the few who preach wealth hoarding for the future generation, mostly, however, as a means of being allowed to horde what they have now for their own selfish use.

While Rome burned Nero fiddled. While the Northwest burns and people starve—Landon calls in a few friends to help criticize the efforts being made to render succor. Representative Hope, member of Landon's agricultural board and one of the critics gathered in Landon's office: "I am amazed that the president said wheat in the stricken district had been increased 10 per cent—perfectly shocking. It was decreased 5 per cent. I am amazed." Not a suggestion of how the suffering may be relieved. While the president is placing 75,000 farmers on WPA projects at $15 per week to hold the bodies and souls of human beings together and trying to salvage some of the live stock, this representative of Landon's agricultural platform, is "Amazed" at the difference in a 10 per cent and a 5 per cent increase statement made last spring.

Thousands upon thousands of words are being uttered by paid utterers to what a heck of a man Landon is and what a whale of a man he always has been, but not discovered until Kansas needed saving from the Democratic party. Dollars upon dollars of the Liberty League du Pont money is being spent to try and build up a man who can not even whisper a word in his own behalf. But as strange as it may seem this is the exact kind of a man the Liberty League du Pont aggregation wants and must have, else go back and take chances with other men in life's business. Used to having control of government they realize now as never before just what a poor showing they would make when stacked up along side of men who have by fair and energetic means built up a decent life estate. It is an old and true saying that "a gambler who cheats never can win a dollar in a fair game." It is a good psychology at that, because they rely on their cheating instead of their ability to judge what the other players have.

LANDON AND THE BANKS

Even the severest critics of the New Deal have been forced to admit that the bank legislation of the Democratic administration has much to commend it, particularly the plan safeguarding bank deposits.

A Democratic House in 1932 passed a bank deposit measure, which a Republican Senate refused to consider. When both houses became Democratic in 1933 they passed the Glass-Steagall bill, the president signed it, and the insurance of bank deposits became an accomplished fact.

While the Banking Act of 1933 was before the Senate, Governor Landon addressed a message to Senator Capper of Kansas, in which he said that the "pending banking bill is extremely injurious to state banks and threatens their very existence. . . . Urge your active opposition to the banking section." Later, Governor Landon, in an address read for him by the bank commissioner of Kansas before the state bank division of the American Bankers Association, said, "there is no question in my mind but that the guarantee of bank deposits is a greater blow to the ultimate welfare of the American people than the wildest inflation of the currency could possibly be."

The Republican platform of 1936 is silent on deposit insurance. What are the results? During the last 12 years of Republican administration there were 11,457 bank failures in the United States with deposits of $5,500,000,000. Since March 4, 1933, there have been 61 bank failures of insured institutions with deposits of $14,688,000. The depositors in these 61 institutions were promptly reimbursed to the amount of their deposits below $2,500, later raised to $5,000.

Since Jan. 1, 1936, there has not been a failure of a deposit-insured bank in the United States!—Commercial Appeal.

WHAT THE JUNIOR CHAMBER IS DOING

Treat for Children

Sikeston children will have a chance to cool off this summer if the weather becomes very warm again. At a meeting in the Crossroads cafe Tuesday night, junior chamber members decided to provide them with a sprinkler system for hot days. The organization hopes it can get a strip of old fire hose, stop up both ends, and plug holes in the sides to make a shower, but it can't, members will buy pipe. They're determined the children shall have fun in the heat.

Industries

The junior chamber wants to know more of Sikeston's industries. Members talked Tuesday night of going in a group to inspect for their own knowledge the shoe factory and mills. No date has been set for the trip.

Tennis Tourney

Before adjournment, the club appropriated $5 for expenses of the city-wide tennis tournament it's sponsoring. The next meeting will be held August 4.

MRS ARCH KING OF MINER SWITCH DIES

Funeral services for Mrs. Arch King, who died early Tuesday morning, at her home near Miner Switch, were conducted at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Miner Baptist church. The Rev. Lawrence Ray, the pastor, preached. Burial in the Miner Switch cemetery.

Mrs. King died of heart ailment. She had been in ill health for several years and was seriously ill a week before her death.

Mrs. King was a native of Missouri. She was born in Bollinger county on October 9, 1879, and had lived in this district many years. She is survived by these children: Mrs. Bob Grigsby and Edwin King of Miner Switch; Virgin King of Denver, Colo.; Miss Ruby King of Chillicothe; and Mrs. Aubrey Case of North Carolina. Her husband died six months ago. Welsh service.

INTERMEDIATE C. E. REORGANIZED WED.

The Intermediate Christian Endeavor of the Presbyterian church was re-organized Wednesday, July 16, at the home of the sponsor, Mrs. Ruby Hamby, with eight members present.

The name "Faithful Gleaners" was chosen for the name of the organization and "Follow the Glean" was selected as the theme song. The eight point record system was also adopted by the union as a means of building a spiritual union. Miss Jewell Bishop was elected as president and Miss Wortha Bishop as secretary treasurer for the coming year. The young people of the town who do not attend any other young people's society are cordially invited to worship with us.

Raw wool left on the farm is fine for light-weight comforters, baby quilts, foot warmers, and even pillows and mattresses. Of course it has to be washed and carded.

NEW HAMBURG FARMER CARES FOR SHEEP WELL

Charles Grojean of near New Hamburg is planning now for a larger and better lamb crop next spring, and in order to keep his sheep in the best condition he is treating them against stomach and tape worm infection.

Using a blue stone-nicotine sulphate solution, Grojean required only a short time to treat the entire flock at a cost of less than one cent each. The treatments will be continued once a month until fall, and by following this procedure, Grojean will have ewes in a thrifty condition by winter and a materially reduced feed cost.

The ewe lambs and rams will be clipped this week in order that they may better withstand the heat and grow properly. Preparations are being made to have lambs dropped in January so they will be ready for market by the last of May.

THE OIL BURNING REFRIGERATOR
A PRODUCT OF PERFECTION STOVE COMPANY

Superflex Oil Burning Refrigerator

Many of these oil burning refrigerators are in use in tropical countries as well as in rural homes in this country. The burners are lit only a short time each day, going out automatically after operating about two hours to create ample refrigeration to last 24 to 36 hours.

Requiring no outside connection of any kind and having no moving parts to wear out or cause trouble, these refrigerators are being successfully used in all parts of the world, including remote sections of Africa, India, the Philippine Islands, Central America, and other tropical countries.

An exclusive feature which is said to make these refrigerators effective even under the most severe conditions is the cooling system; that is, the condenser, which provides both water and air cooling. Water is used in the condenser tank in much the same way as it is used in automobile engines.

The refrigerators freeze 40 or more ice cubes at a time, the quantity varying with the different models.

MISSOURI HISTORY

Courtesy Missouri Historical Society

Birth of Joseph Nicolas Nicollet

No chapter in Missouri history surpasses in interests the chapter of Western exploration. In this field, the dramatic expedition of Lewis and Clark to the Columbia, the amazing Rocky Mountain exploits of the fur traders and the military expeditions of Zebulon M. Pike and Stephen H. Long have tended to minimize the later of Joseph Nicolas Nicollet and John C. Fremont. Yet, Nicollet and Fremont, and not their predecessors, met the crying need for a thorough geographical knowledge of the West, directed the attention of the U. S. government to the western country, and, by scientifically mapping the vast territory between the Mississippi river and the Pacific Ocean, made known the geography of the northwest and made possible, in the forties, the western trek of thousands of emigrants to Oregon and California.

In this prodigious task, the achievements of Fremont are generally better known and appreciated than those of Nicollet. Yet, to Nicollet belongs the distinction of being the first, after Schollcraft, to accept the challenge to science of the trans-Mississippi country. It was he who first scientifically mapped the regions of the upper Mississippi and Missouri rivers and the great plateau and lake country between their upper reaches. When ill health and, finally, death removed him from the field of his vast labors in the northwest and from the leadership of the scientific expedition of the United States government to the Rocky Mountains in 1842, it was he who had trained Fremont who was, in turn, to take up the task of mapping the West and upon whom was to descend the mantle of Nicollet.

A native of Savoy, Nicollet was born July 24, 1786, and in 1832, at the time of his arrival in the U. S., he was at the height of his scientific powers. The son of poor parents, his remarkable mathematical accomplishments had elevated him to an association with Pierre Simon Laplace, to a professorship in the College of Louisi-Grand in Paris and to wealth, social position and scientific honors. Unfortunately, his firm belief in his theory of probabilities and mathematical combinations caused him to speculate on the French Bourse during the Revolution of 1830. Financially ruined by these speculations, he left Paris and emigrated to New Orleans.

Upon his arrival in the U. S., he conducted investigations for a time in the Southwest. Then, carrying letters of introduction from New Orleans, where he was well known, he went to St. Louis where he became intimately acquainted with the Chouteaus. When, in the spring of 1835, he determined to trace the exact headwaters of the Mississippi, it is generally accepted that the Chouteau family were his chief supporters. Looking for no other remuneration than the general information which would result, it appears that the rich and enterprising fur trading house of Pierre Chouteau, Jr., and Co., contributed liberally toward his expenses. The result was the tracing of the chief affluent of Lake Itasca, now known as Nicollet's Infant Mississippi, together with other valuable scientific information.

Inevitably, Nicollet's investigations attracted the attention of the United States government and of Secretary of War Poinsette. As a consequence, in 1838, he was commissioned to head an official expedition to make an extensive survey of the northwest. On this expedition he was accompanied by the young Lieutenant John C. Fremont who was ordered by Poinsette to join Nicollet in St. Louis. Two surveys were accomplished by this expedition: one connected Nicollet's former survey of the upper Mississippi with the watershed of the Missouri, the other was of the upper basin of the Mississippi. These surveys together constituted the first thoroughly scientific mapping, based upon minute astronomical observations, of the northwest.

Never robust, the rigors of the hardships endured by Nicollet in his arduous explorations, found him, upon his return to Washington, ill and broken in health. The work of the final preparation of his maps and the compiling of his scientific reports for the government was nevertheless pushed with characteristic vigor. Nicollet's workroom, where Fremont was closely allied with him in his scientific labors, was the scene of long conversations among the group of Western expansionists concerning the western wilderness still unsurveyed. This group, including Lewis F. Linn, Senator Dodge, George Bancroft, Thomas H. Benton and Poinsette, discussed, and finally pushed to fruition, plans for an expedition to be financed by Congress, for the survey of the Oregon trail.

Though but for ill health, Nicollet would have led the famous expedition of 1842, he took great interest in its preparation and in the selection as its leader of Fremont, whom he loved as a son. Following Fremont's departure, the delicate frame of his diseased body withstood but a short time the driving force of the fiery spirit within and he died on September 11, 1843.

HUNTER 4-H COTTON CLUB VISITS MEMBERS' FIELDS

The Hunter 4-H Cotton club made a tour of Scott county fields last week under the supervision of F. B. Veatch, the county agent.

The tour began at the Missouri experimental station three miles north of town and included visits to projects of club members.

The effects of different cultural practices upon the growth of cotton were noted, particularly the time of planting and preparation of seed beds. In each case, the older cotton was considerably larger and was fruiting more abundantly than the younger cotton. The variation of planting, however, was only over a period of about two weeks.

All club members planted Stoneville 4, an improved variety. Since they intend to have their crops certified later in the season, Scott county farmers will have an opportunity to secure good planting seed for next year. Several ginners have expressed their willingness to clean gins thoroughly before ginning the club members' cotton in order to eliminate the possibility of the presence of variety mixtures at the gin.

These persons made the tour: Richard Byrd, Charles Johnson, Charles Royal, Lyman Royal, and Ralph Wyatt, club members, Carl Luper, the local leader, Mr. Veatch, and Assistant County Agent Ragsdale.

THE
EDITOR
SAYS—

Judge Roberts, presiding judge of the Dunklin County Court, had some nice things to say of Major Lloyd Stark at the Glennville picnic Wednesday. Likewise he stated Dunklin County had Democrats who were Democrats and that Major Stark would receive 75 per cent of the vote in the August primary. Later he said Stark would receive 85 per cent of the Democratic vote. Judge Roberts showed that he was familiar with past performances of the man, Hirth, by stating from the speakers stand that four years ago he was closely allied to the Pendergast organization that he and his allies on the Republican ticket are now so lambasting. Judge Roberts likewise told his hearers that Major Stark was not Mr. Pendergast's selection that the Major was the peoples choice and Mr. Pendergast was the peoples enemy. The Judge is 100 per cent with his people and for his people.

Harry Brundridge, staff reporter for a St. Louis yellow journal, visited Sikeston Tuesday in his search to make a mountain out of a mole hill. He had a pretty good load of liquor aboard when he visited an employee of the WPA in his efforts to find out if all was well, or if things were as bad as Harry said they were. Harry made some pretty wild statements to this gentleman who is a good brother in the church house at his home that so exasperated the good brother that he forgot his religious training long enough to tell Harry that he was a damned liar. Harry said he would print these remarks in his yellow journal, which he probably will, if the remarks of the good brother were so, and we are satisfied they were. Anyway, the wheel of fortune turns round and round and nobody knows where it will stop.

We are happy to state that Mrs. C. L. Blanton, Sr., is able to about the house and we trust within a few more days will be able to jump up and crack her heels together.

Southeast Missourians, we fear, do not appreciate the splendid crops they have already harvested and those just ahead. While the most of the State had a fair wheat crop, the drought and heat waves have blasted their prospects of a corn crop, the only other crop they depend on. Southeast Missouri has already harvested the wheat, rye, barley and oats, and hay crops, and they were every one fine. Now melons are going on the market and with the exception of light sandy land, corn will be a wonderful crop, and cotton never looked more promising. While this section of the great State of Missouri raises so many varied crops the balance of the State is confined to wheat, corn and hay. Southeast Missouri will be the seed corn granary of the entire Middle West this time as our corn is heavy and will mature from but to end our people should thank God for the blessings bestowed upon them.

Down at West Palm Beach, Fla., two men are claiming to be the daddy of triplets born to a woman at that vicinity. This leads us to wonder if Daddy Dionne was running loose in that vicinity within the past nine or fourteen months.

Mrs. M. E. Prouty has the thanks of the editor and wife for a very fine lot of peaches presented Monday. They were large, juicy and thoroughly enjoyed. It is mighty pleasant to be remembered in this manner by friends.

Mrs. Dolly Gann tells Landon this is a Republican year. Guess she has begun to lay the chunks to get her big bread in a chair at the White House receptions in case the awful calamity of his being elected President this fall.

It may be good news to the old age pensioners to know that nine certificates for Scott County were received in this office Tuesday morning, signed and sent on where they will likely reach the State Auditor Thursday of this week who will then send vouchers to those named for their final signature after which the checks will follow soon thereafter. Four of the nine are for Sikeston as follows: Albert Linsie Beck, 413 Wilcox; James Miles Shirley, R. 1; Thomas Jefferson Smith, corner Gladys and Delmar; William Carter, R. 2, Box 1174. These checks will be for the one month beginning July 1, 1936. With these certificates came a letter stating: "Your back payments will be presented to the Legislature for consideration."

Bob Mow and Lacy Allard, who are in the wilds of the lakes in the north on their vacation, expressed a large box of lake trout to Sikeston that arrived Thursday morning all packed in ice. The Standard editor was happy to have had one of these beauties presented to him.

A district assembly of Churches of the Nazarene will be held here on September 9, 10, 11, 12, and 13, the Rev. C. F. Transue said Thursday. Dr. R. T. Williams of Kansas City, the presiding general superintendent, will have charge of sessions. The district organization is composed of churches in the eastern half of Missouri.

James McDowell of Charleston, Fox' attorney, was considering taking a change of venue to Justice C. D. M. Gupton's court in Morley. Fox is free on a $200 bond signed by himself and his father, Harrison Fox, of Morehouse.

Cases against George Johns, who is accused of writing three worthless checks amounting to $5.65, were continued until August 6 when Johns appeared in Judge William S. Smith's court Thursday.

Johns is charged with cashing a $1.25 check at the A. & P. store, one for $2.50 at the City Cab Company, and one at the O. K. Auto Supply for $1.90. He denies knowledge of them, saying someone else wrote them and signed his name.

Father Peters' Annual Parish Picnic

By Madelyn Roussan

Democracy in Southeast Missouri enjoyed another heartwarming rally yesterday when from far and near folks came about 3,000 strong to gather at Glennville where, in the name of Father Peters' annual parish picnic, everybody had a good time and the Democratic campaign got another big boost toward election success.

Candidates and voters, alike, joined hands as they made this a grand and glorious occasion for furthering the interests of Democracy as well as making it a memorable picnic from a financial standpoint in the annals of the Glennville parish. It could well qualify for being the biggest one-man picnic ever given in the State.

The multitude feasted on the deliciousness of crisp-brown fried chicken, cakes stacked three decks high, and an array of other good victuals as only the "wimmen folks" of a church can put out. Upwards of a thousand people were fed in this manner and all filed out of the dining room as happy and contented as honey bees flying out of a clover field.

Interest was divided as to amusements pursued, ranging all the way from listening to Tommy Jones play the fiddle up to watching Ol' Man Elbelhor pitch balls at wooden dolls to win a pocketful of cigars. But when it came to political issues, all were of one accord. The cause of Democracy must not suffer loss at the election polls next November!

The hands present, two of them, played lots of lively airs, adding zest to the occasion. Those with red caps were from Kennett; those in blue from Poplar Bluff, musical donations toward a more perfect picnic. And the neighborly spirit of Democracy was manifested by the sign on the band stand which read, "Poplar Bluff High School Band compliments from the Butler County Central Committee to the Dunklin County Central Committee." That's really helping each other along!

Something else as food for thought on that sign, caught and held the attention of the assembly. Embazoned on the banner was the statement, four years in advance, "Welcome, Senator Clark, Democracy's Presidential candidate in 1940!" And nobody doubted the assertion.

A number of prominent campaigners, among them Bennett Champ Clark himself, were billed to speak in the afternoon, but only two of the major scheduled ones, Orville Zimmerman, Congressman incumbent, and William Hirth, with governor ambitions, arrived to keep their engagement. They, together with aspirants seeking primary favors in August, for lesser offices, entertained the throng in behalf of themselves and Democracy. Irl Jones, as chairman of the Dunklin County Democratic Committee, saw to it that the situation did not lack for a master of ceremonies.

Zimmerman, able representative from Missouri's 10th Congressional District, rose to the defense of Roosevelt and Democracy by predicting, "As sure as the sun rises in the east and sets in the west, we're going to re-elect to direct our nation's destiny the friend of the common man and laborer, that great humanitarian, Franklin Delano Roosevelt!"

In calling up reasons for this, Congressman Zimmerman went on to state our President, "He is the tried and true friend of the common people upon whose votes his election will depend. His foes have already declared war on him, so that it is up to his admirers and the common people of this nation to see him through."

Man's Arm Crushed In Auto-Truck Collision

Ben Cruise of southeast of Dexter was seriously injured Monday night when the 1935 Dodge he was driving west on Highway 60 hit an eastbound truck from Morley. The part of Cruise's left arm that was resting on his car door when the accident happened was crushed and a section of the main bone torn from the arm and thrown to the pavement.

Physicians said Cruise would have bled to death if J. R. Murphy of Morley, driver of the truck, had not tightly held the principal artery of Cruise's arm until he could be treated.

The accident happened at 8:45 at a place on the highway a mile east of Gray Ridge and 100 yards from a bridge that spans a lateral drainage ditch.

Murphy and Hal Boyce of Morley, the truck owner, were returning to Morley with a load of yearlings and were driving slowly because their headlights were a little dim and because many hay wagons and trucks were on the road. Murphy said he saw Cruise drive his car onto the wrong side of the pavement as he approached the truck. Murphy swerved his machine halfway off the highway, but not far enough for Cruise to miss him.

Ira Bilderbeck, a farmer living near the scene of the accident, drove Cruise to an Essex physician while Murphy held his bleeding arm. Cruise was later taken to a wife, Mrs. Hydia Darby; a son, Albert Darby of Essex; six daughters, Mrs. Beulah Baker and Miss Ollie Darby of Sikeston, Mrs. Iva Greer, Mrs. Bertha Roberts, and Mrs. Mary Graham of Essex, and Mrs. Elizabeth Jenkins of Ste. Genevieve, Welsh service.

Mr. Darby was born here on August 4, 1876, and for many years lived and farmed at the north edge of town. In 1900, he moved to Stoddard county, where he farmed until illness forced him to retire. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Hydia Darby; a son, Albert Darby of Essex; six daughters, Mrs. Beulah Baker and Miss Ollie Darby of Sikeston, Mrs. Iva Greer, Mrs. Bertha Roberts, and Mrs. Mary Graham of Essex, and Mrs. Elizabeth Jenkins of Ste. Genevieve, Welsh service.

Drainage Improvement Program Is Under Way

Cape Girardeau, Mo., July 23.—With 275 miles of ditches under contract aggregating $11,392.30, the Little river drainage district's maintenance program in the seven counties in Southeast Missouri it serves is well under way for 1936. Definitely contemplating placing approximately 300 more miles of ditches under the clearing contracts, the district will, by late fall, have achieved its goal in maintenance work for this year.

Maintenance work of this district is a vital part of the drainage program, and the district, providing landowners co-operate with the district officials in making the program possible by the prompt payment of annual assessments, may be able to reduce the maintenance cost somewhat in the future, they said. Lowering of this cost, however, depends upon the frequency with which the district can cover the drainage system with its maintenance work.

This character of the district mileage, given attention annually, is the objective. Annual coverage of the system reduces the amount of work necessary in the maintenance program, which should result in a corresponding decrease in costs.

The 275 miles of ditches now under clearing contracts is costing only $41.40 per mile. Last year the system was almost all covered in the program, 750 miles of ditches being cleared at an average of about 48.00 or an average of $61.50 per mile. Last year's work is reflected somewhat in the decreased cost per mile of the 1936 program.

Drainage officials hope to cover the remaining 300 miles of ditches by November. This work consists in removing weeds, brush, vegetable growth, and obstructions, such as logs, fences, or other barriers which impede or stop the flow of water and permit the piling up of debris, robbing the channels of their drainage efficiency. Many landowners are responding splendidly in keeping ditches on their land free of barricades which cause the channels to fill.

What has been referred to as last year's program is exclusive of the approximate 75 miles of ditches dredged with machines, a necessarily expensive process in comparison to general maintenance by clearing the ditches. Such an expense can be made less frequent if the general maintenance program is permitted to cover the district annually, drainage district officials said.

Furthermore, it was pointed out, the maintenance program described above, does not include the great amount of work done by the three CCC camps in Southeast Missouri, which federal government has placed at the disposal of the several districts in Southeast Missouri in aiding the reclamation of fertile soil. The importance of the drainage program, drainage officials added, is well proven in the fact that the federal government before Pendergast ever gave his endorsement. The Judge also pointed out that because Stark is 100 per cent for old age pensions, it is the burden duty of every voter to vote for a man who is pre-eminently interested in the welfare of old folks.

The good wishes of Dwight H. Brown were telegraphed to the picnic from New York City where Missouri's secretary of state is attending a national secretarial meeting from which he could not well be absent. He expressed regret at not being able to join in the exercises of the Glennville picnic and Democratic jubilee.

ment went to the enormous expense of placing the three camps at Delta, Hayti, and New Madrid to augment what landowners by the payment of their annual drainage assessments enabled the Little river and other drainage district officials to undertake and accomplish. The far-reaching effect of the work programs of these camps has attracted considerable favorable attention in Washington, where CCC heads have pointed to them as examples of attained objectives in the drainage division of the CCC organization.

Without doubt the greatest burden carried by civilized people today is taxes. It is not so much the trouble of paying the taxes as the supposed injustice and blight upon our unborn children. Taxation is the favorite subject of office seekers who are on the outside. The Democrats did it until they got in and now the Republicans are doing it. The city papers are exercised about the cost to taxpayers of submitting the proposed insurance code. We don't know whether it is worth the cost or not but at the same time there will be submitted a proposal to increase the salaries of legislators from $5 a day for 70 days to $1,500 a year or $3,000 for the term. This will cost a lot more than the insurance code and we believe it is worth it. However, there are a lot of people who do not and we are more certain that it will be defeated than the insurance code. Before folks became civilized they had no taxes to worry about and figured their unborn children would be able to take care of themselves. Isn't it too bad we have progressed beyond the fig leaf or G-string and have politics and taxation to contend with?—Shelbina Democrat.

We can imagine nothing more cruel than misleading old people into the notion that they would be getting full payment on pension claims except for Governor Park's refusal to call an extra session of the legislature for the purpose of providing more funds. The governor, it will be remembered, tried with all his might to get more money at the regular session. He was balked by the very interests that are now trying to swing Missouri into the Republican column, powerful interests which oppose everything that costs a penny. The Democratic party inaugurated the pension policy and will find ways to finance it if kept in power. Governor Park, it should be remembered, queried all members about an extra session of the legislature and found two-thirds of them against it, so why call an extra session.—Paris Appeal.

Two carloads of watermelons—the first of Dunklin county's crop, which, experts say, will be only from 15 to 20 per cent of normal—were shipped from Kennett last week. Lee Warren of south of Kennett loaded the first car Tuesday with Dixie Belles averaging twenty-five pounds and sent them to a Kansas city commission house. The next day, L. R. Rainey, also of south of Kennett, shipped to Hannibal a carload of the same variety.

POLITICAL PARAGRAPHS FROM LAPLATA PRESS

Anti-administration papers would disfranchise CCC workers because of fear they might vote for the party that took them from relief and gave them the most consistent job of the whole endeavor to lift this country out of the mire it had slumped into during the "twelve long years" of Republican rule. One paper published in Boston has these headlines: "Leave of absence all the rage with the administration" "Barley given leave of absence" "But it did not say, without pay. CCC workers to have leave of absence to go home to vote." Probably it was because the yell were to be, if taken, without pay?

Col. Henry Breckenridge, the Liberty League du Pont candidate in three or four primaries, has been off Roosevelt, has returned his sheep clothing to the home left. He is back in the Republican party after suffering from 5 to 1 to 15 to 1 defeat in each state the League put him in as Roosevelt's primary foe. He now says he will vote for Landon. Lord, but there is a mixed lot of these renegades from other tribes trying to save the Republican party. All outcasts, disgruntled and defeated in their ambitions, have found sanctuary within the party they so roundly cursed before they found that they could not fool the Democrats into accepting them.

The Kansas Neodesha Register says, "The kids of 50 years ago had no cones for their ice cream, no ice cream to put in 'em no ice cream sodas, no chocolate fudge, no divinity cream, no roller skates, no coaster wagons, no bicycles, no league ball, no store bat, no catcher's mit. Instead they amused themselves with methods which required no cash outlay—and had just as good a time as the kids of today." Yet if these kids had been satisfied with the things they made without cash outlay, the kids of today would not have had the long list enumerated above. The good times had by the kids of fifty years ago consisted largely of trying to make better things. In other words they were changing the constitution to fit conditions as they went along.

It's funny, when you come to think about it, why the anti-administration papers forget to tell the coming sons and daughters, if any, about what will be left them besides, possibly a national debt that we had left to us; that they will have left as a heritage thousands of miles of concrete roads; a great forest just coming into use, that the CCC boys are setting out for them; a heritage of health and vigor, imparted by parents, whom this government through its social welfare plans built up from a rapidly deteriorating race to sound and healthy men and women. Besides all of this, the most valued of all—an American plan of government that will prevent them from becoming the serfs of the few who preach wealth building for the future generation. Mostly, however, as a means of being allowed to horde what they have now for their own selfish use.

While Rome burned Nero fiddled. While the Northwest burned and people starved—Landon calls in a few friends to help criticize the efforts being made to render succor. Representative Hope, member of Landon's agricultural board and one of the critics gathered in Landon's office, "I am amazed that the president said wheat in the stricken district had been increased 10 per cent—perfectly shocking. It was decreased 5 per cent. I am amazed." Not a suggestion of how the suffering may be relieved. While the president is placing 75,000 farmers on WPA projects at $15 per week to hold the bodies and souls of human beings together and trying to salvage some of the live stock, this representative of Landon's agricultural platform, is "Amazed" at the difference in a 10 per cent and a 5 per cent increase statement made last spring.

Thousands upon thousands of words are being uttered by paid utterers to what a heck of a man Landon is and what a whale of a man he always has been, but not discovered until Kansas needed saving from the Democratic party. Dollars upon dollars of the Liberty League du Pont money is being spent to try and build up a man who can not even whisper a word in his own behalf. But as strange as it may seem this is the exact kind of a man the Liberty League du Pont aggregation wants and must have, else go back and take chances with other men in life's business. Used to having control of government they realize now as never before just what a poor showing they would make when stacked up along side of men who have by fair and energetic means built up a decent life estate. It is an old and true saying that "a gambler who cheats never can win a dollar in a fair game." It is a good physiology at that, because they rely on their cheating instead of their ability to judge what the other players have.

LONDON AND THE BANKS

Even the severest critics of the New Deal have been forced to admit that the bank legislation of the Democratic administration has much to commend it, particularly the plan safeguarding bank deposits.

A Democratic House in 1932 passed a bank deposit measure, which a Republican Senate refused to consider. When both houses became Democratic in 1933 they passed the Glass-Steagall bill, the president signed it, and the insurance of bank deposits became an accomplished fact.

While the Banking Act of 1933 was before the Senate, Governor Landon addressed a message to Senator Capper of Kansas, in which he said that the "pending banking bill is extremely injurious to state banks and threatens their very existence. . . . Urge your active opposition to the guarantee section." Later, Governor Landon, in an address read for Kansas before the state bank division of the American Bankers Association, said, "there is no question in my mind but that the guarantee of bank deposits is a greater blow to the ultimate welfare of the American people than the wildest inflation of the currency could possibly be."

The Republican platform of 1936 is silent on deposit insurance. What are the results? During the last 12 years of Republican administration there were 11,457 bank failures in the United States with deposits of $5,500,000,000. Since March 4, 1933, there have been 61 bank failures of insured institutions with deposits of $14,688,000. The depositors in these 61 institutions were promptly reimbursed to the amount of their deposits below $2,500, later raised to $5,000.

Since Jan. 1, 1936, there has not been a failure of a deposit-insured bank in the United States!—Commercial Appeal.

WHAT THE JUNIOR CHAMBER IS DOING

Treat for Children

Sikeston children will have a chance to cool off this summer if the weather becomes very warm again. At a meeting in the Crossroads cafe Tuesday night, junior chamber members decided to provide them with a sprinkler system for hot days. The organization hopes it can get a strip of old fire hose, stop up both ends, and plug holes in the sides to make a shower, but it can't, members will buy pipe. They're determined the children shall have fun in the heat.

Industries

The junior chamber wants to know more of Sikeston's industries. Members talked Tuesday night of going in a group to inspect for their own knowledge the shoe factory and mills. No date has been set for the trip.

Tennis Tourney

Before adjournment, the club appropriated $5 for expenses of the city-wide tennis tournament it's sponsoring. The next meeting will be held August 4.

MRS ARCH KING OF MINER SWITCH DIES

Funeral services for Mrs. Arch King, who died early Tuesday morning, at her home near Miner Switch, were conducted at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Miner Baptist church. The Rev. Lawrence Ray, the pastor, preached. Burial in the Miner Switch cemetery.

Mrs. King died of heart ailment. She had been in ill health for several years and was seriously ill a week before her death.

Mrs. King was a native of Missouri. She was born in Bollinger county on October 9, 1879, and had lived in this district many years. She is survived by these children: Mrs. Bob Grigsby and Edwin King of Miner Switch; Virgin King of Denver, Colo.; Miss Ruby King of Chillicothe; and Mrs. Aubrey Case of North Carolina. Her husband died six months ago. Welsh service.

INTERMEDIATE C. E. REORGANIZED WED.

The Intermediate Christian Endeavor of the Presbyterian church was re-organized Wednesday, July 16, at the home of the sponsor, Mrs. Ruby Hamby, with eight members present.

The name "Faithful Gleaners" was chosen for the name of the organization and "Follow the Glean" was selected as the theme song. The eight point record system was also adopted by the union as a means of building a spiritual union. Miss Jewell Bishop was elected as president and Miss Wortha Bishop as secretary treasurer for the coming year. The young people of the town who do not attend any other young people's society are cordially invited to worship with us.

Raw wool left on the farm is fine for light-weight comforters, baby quilts, foot warmers, and even pillows and mattresses. Of course it has to be washed and carded.

NEW HAMBURG FARMER CARES FOR SHEEP WELL

Charles Grojean of near New Hamburg is planning now for a larger and better lamb crop next spring, and in order to keep his sheep in the best condition he is treating them against stomach and tape worm infection.

Using a blue stone-nicotine sulphate solution, Grojean required only a short time to treat the entire flock at a cost of less than one cent each. The treatments will be continued once a month until fall, and by following this procedure, Grojean will have ewes in a thrifty condition by winter and a materially reduced feed cost.

The ewe lambs and rams will be clipped this week in order that they may better withstand the heat and grow properly. Preparations are being made to have lambs dropped in January so they will be ready for market by the last of May.

SUPERFEX THE OIL BURNING REFRIGERATOR
A PRODUCT OF PERFECTION STOVE COMPANY

Superflex Oil Burning Refrigerator

Many of these oil burning refrigerators are in use in tropical countries as well as in rural homes in this country. The burners are lit only a short time each day, going out automatically after operating about two hours to create ample refrigeration to last 24 to 36 hours.

Requiring no outside connection of any kind and having no moving parts to wear out or cause trouble, these refrigerators are being successfully used in all parts of the world, including remote sections of Africa, India, the Philippine Islands, Central America, and other tropical countries.

An exclusive feature which is said to make these refrigerators effective even under the most severe conditions is the cooling system; that is, the condenser, which provides both water and air cooling. Water is used in the condenser tank in much the same way as it is used in automobile engines.

The refrigerators freeze 40 or more ice cubes at a time, the quantity varying with the different models.

MISSOURI HISTORY

Courtesy Missouri Historical Society

Birth of Joseph Nicolas Nicollet

No chapter in Missouri history surpasses in interests the chapter of Western exploration. In this field, the dramatic expedition of Lewis and Clark to the Columbia, the amazing Rocky Mountain exploits of the fur traders and the military expeditions of Zebulon M. Pike and Stephen H. Long have tended to minimize the later scientific geographical conquests of Joseph Nicolas Nicollet.

John C. Fremont. Yet, Nicollet and Fremont, and not their predecessors, met the crying need for a thorough geographical knowledge of the West, directed the attention of the U. S. government to the western country, and, by scientifically mapping the vast territory between the Mississippi river and the Pacific Ocean, made known the geography of the northwest and made possible, in the forties, the western trek of thousands of emigrants to Oregon and California.

In this prodigious task, the achievements of Fremont are generally better known and appreciated than those of Nicollet. Yet, to Nicollet belongs the distinction of being the first, after Schollcraft, to accept the challenge to science of the trans-Mississippi country. It was he who first scientifically mapped the regions of the upper Mississippi and Missouri rivers and the great plateau and lake country between their upper reaches. When ill health and, finally, death removed him from the field of his vast labors in the northwest and from the leadership of the scientific expedition of the United States government to the Rocky Mountains in 1842, it was he who had trained Fremont who was, in turn, to take up the task of mapping the West and upon whom was to descend the mantle of Nicollet.

A native of Savoy, Nicollet was born July 24, 1786, and in 1832, at the time of his arrival in the U. S., he was at the height of his scientific powers. The son of poor parents, his remarkable mathematical accomplishments had elevated him to an association with Pierre Simon Laplace, to a professorship in the College of Louisi-

Grand in Paris and to wealth, social position and scientific honors. Unfortunately, his firm belief in his theory of probabilities and mathematical combinations caused him to speculate on the French Bourse during the Revolution of 1830. Financially ruined by these speculations, he left Paris and emigrated to New Orleans.

Upon his arrival in the U. S., he conducted investigations for a time in the Southwest. Then, carrying letters of introduction from New Orleans, where he was well known, he went to St. Louis where he became intimately acquainted with the Chouteaus.

When, in the spring of 1835, he determined to trace the exact headwaters of the Mississippi, it is generally accepted that the Chouteau family were his chief supporters. Looking for no other remuneration than the general information which would result, it appears that the rich and enterprising fur trading house of Pierre Chouteau, Jr., and Co., contributed liberally toward his expenses. The result was the tracing of the chief affluent of Lake Itasca, now known as Nicollet's Infant Mississippi, together with other valuable scientific information.

Inevitably, Nicollet's investigations attracted the attention of the United States government and of Secretary of War Poinsette. As a consequence, in 1838, he was commissioned to head an official expedition to make an extensive survey of the northwest. On this expedition he was accompanied by the young Lieutenant John C. Fremont who was ordered by Poinsette to join Nicollet in St. Louis. Two surveys were accomplished by these expeditions: one connected Nicollet's former survey of the upper Mississippi with the watershed of the Missouri, the other was of the upper basin of the Mississippi. These surveys thoroughly constituted the first scientific mapping, based upon minute astronomical observations, of the northwest.

Never robust, the rigors of the hardships endured by Nicollet in his arduous explorations, found him, upon his return to Washington, ill and broken in health. The work of the final preparation of his maps and the compiling of his scientific reports for the government was nevertheless pushed with characteristic vigor. Nicollet's workroom, where Fremont was closely allied with him in his scientific conversations among the group of Western expansionists concerning the western wilderness still unsurveyed. This group, including Lewis F. Linn, Senator Dodge, George Bancroft, Thomas H. Benton and Poinsette, discussed, and finally pushed to fruition, plans for an expedition to be financed by Congress, for the survey of the Oregon trail.

Though but for ill health, Nicollet would have led the famous expedition of 1842, he took great interest in its preparation and in the selection as its leader of Fremont, whom he loved as a son. Following Fremont's departure, the delicate frame of his diseased body withstood but a short time the driving force of the fiery spirit within and he died on September 11, 1843.

HUNTER 4-H COTTON CLUB VISITS MEMBERS' FIELDS

The Hunter 4-H Cotton club made a tour of Scott county fields last week under the supervision of F. B. Veatch, the county agent.

The tour began at the Missouri experimental station three miles north of town and included visits to projects of club members.

The effects of different cultural practices upon the growth of cotton were noted, particularly the time of planting and preparation of seed beds. In each case, the older cotton was considerably larger and was fruiting more abundantly than the younger cotton. The variation of planting, however, was only over a period of about two weeks.

All club members planted Stoneville 4, an improved variety. Since they intend to have their crops certified later in the season, Scott county farmers will have an opportunity to secure good planting seed for next year. Several ginners have expressed their willingness to clean gins thoroughly before ginning the club members' cotton in order to eliminate the possibility of the presence of variety mixtures at the gin.

These persons made the tour: Richard Byrd, Charles Johnson, Charles Royal, Lyman Royal, and Ralph Wyatt, club members, Carl Luper, the local leader, Mr. Veatch, and Assistant County Agent Ragsdale.
